Background
- Lack of standardized patient handoff from the Anesthesiologist and Operating Room (OR) Nurse to the PACU Nurse.
- The PACU nurses found that significant patient information was not being communicated.
- PACU nurses were expected to assess their patient and place them on the monitor, while report was being given.
- Without a standardized handoff report there is a potential for increased patient safety concerns, miscommunications, and a lack of continuity of care.

Objectives
- Implement a standardized handoff process in the PACU.
- Allow time for the PACU RN to assess the patient prior to report.
- Improve communication of patient information between the OR team and PACU RN.
- Decrease errors and enhance the patient and family experience.

Metrics
- An audit was performed to identify areas of concern related to patient handoff.
- PACU Pause trial was initiated and audits resumed.
- Progress was measured by comparing pre and post implementation audits.

Handoff Process
- When patient arrives in the PACU bay, the PACU RN places the patient on the monitor and does a quick assessment.
- Once the PACU RN is ready, eye contact is made with the anesthesiologist to indicate that the PACU RN is ready for report.
- Complete patient report is given by the anesthesiologist, followed by the OR Nurse.
- The PACU RN then has time for questions before the OR team leaves the bedside.
- During the time that report is being given, any additional team members in the area remain quiet.

Results
After implementation of PACU Pause, compliance with standardized patient handoff improved by 87%.

![Graph showing improvement in compliance]

Process of Implementation
- PACU Pause was created by PACU's Unit Based Council to improve the handoff process and allow for time to assess the patient upon arrival to PACU.
- The staff presented the project to the PACU and OR leadership teams and the Anesthesiologist group for feedback and support.
- Once approved education was provided to the PACU and OR staff about the standardized handoff process.
- PACU Pause signs listing expectations were placed in each bay as a reminder.
- An audit tool was provided to the PACU nurses to complete after receiving report.

Special thanks to Sheila Birlin MSN, RN, CPN for her contributions on this project.